Portland. March 7. 1834.

Rev. Amos A. Phelps,

Dear Sir,

As authorised Representatives of the "Portland Female Anti-Slavery Society", and of the "Maine Anti-Slavery Society", both of this city, we respectfully present to you an invitation to deliver an address before us, on the evening of the fifteenth of April next. Arrangements have been & will be made to render the occasion as productive of advantageous results to the glorious cause in which we are alike interested, as possible,—and in truth, from our present prospects, we feel warranted in promising you as good a field for your labors, as you can desire. The Steamboats will commence their trips early in April: so that a passage thither will be quite an easy matter at the proposed time. Hoping you will be pleased to send us an early acceptance of this invitation, we remain very respectfully Yours,

On the part of the "Maine Anti-Slavery Society" James Wadsworth Attst.-

On the part of the "Portland Female Anti-Slavery Society", Ruth[illegible] Gurney.
